Story

The year is 2762. United under a single government, the citizens of Earth have expanded across the cosmos, colonizing new worlds and befriending new alien races. The universe is a happy place – until the Kleptoid Empire is discovered. An army of machines from a far-off galaxy, the Kleptoids swarm through the universe stealing technology and conquering the worlds of other civilizations.

Highly advanced, the Kleptoids attack with mathematical precision – in fact, they even speak a math-based language. To counter the ever-increasing threat of the Kleptoids, the Union of Planets created an elite fighting force: Math Patrol.

As soon as you join Math Patrol, your skills will be tested and you will be assigned a tour of duty that best fits your abilities. But no one said fighting the Kleptoids would be easy – far from it. You will have to use all your math skills, and pick up a few new ones along the way, before you'll be able to push back the Kleptoid threat.

From daring space battles to base defense and covert spy missions, can you lead the forces of Earth and its allies to victory? Can you become the Galactic Champion, protecting the universe from the Kleptoids once and for all?

Starting a New Game

Your Goal: Defeat the Kleptoids in the Final Mission to earn the title of Galactic Champion. Work your way up through the ranks of Math Patrol to become an Admiral by successfully completing your missions.

To start the full game, press START at the main screen, and then select New Game to play through the entire story with 10 stages and 70 missions.

If you prefer you can also select Practice (p. 14) to play mini-games where you get to choose the game, content types and levels, and game play difficulty.

Once you start a New Game, your game progress is automatically saved at the completion of each mission. Select Continue from the main menu to restart a game from where you last left off.

At the GXB website, get a GXB User ID (p. 3) so you can track your progress and earn prizes and other rewards (p. 3). You can skip this screen and enter your GXB User ID later through the Options menu (p. 29) or from a Math Patrol Command Post (p. 22).

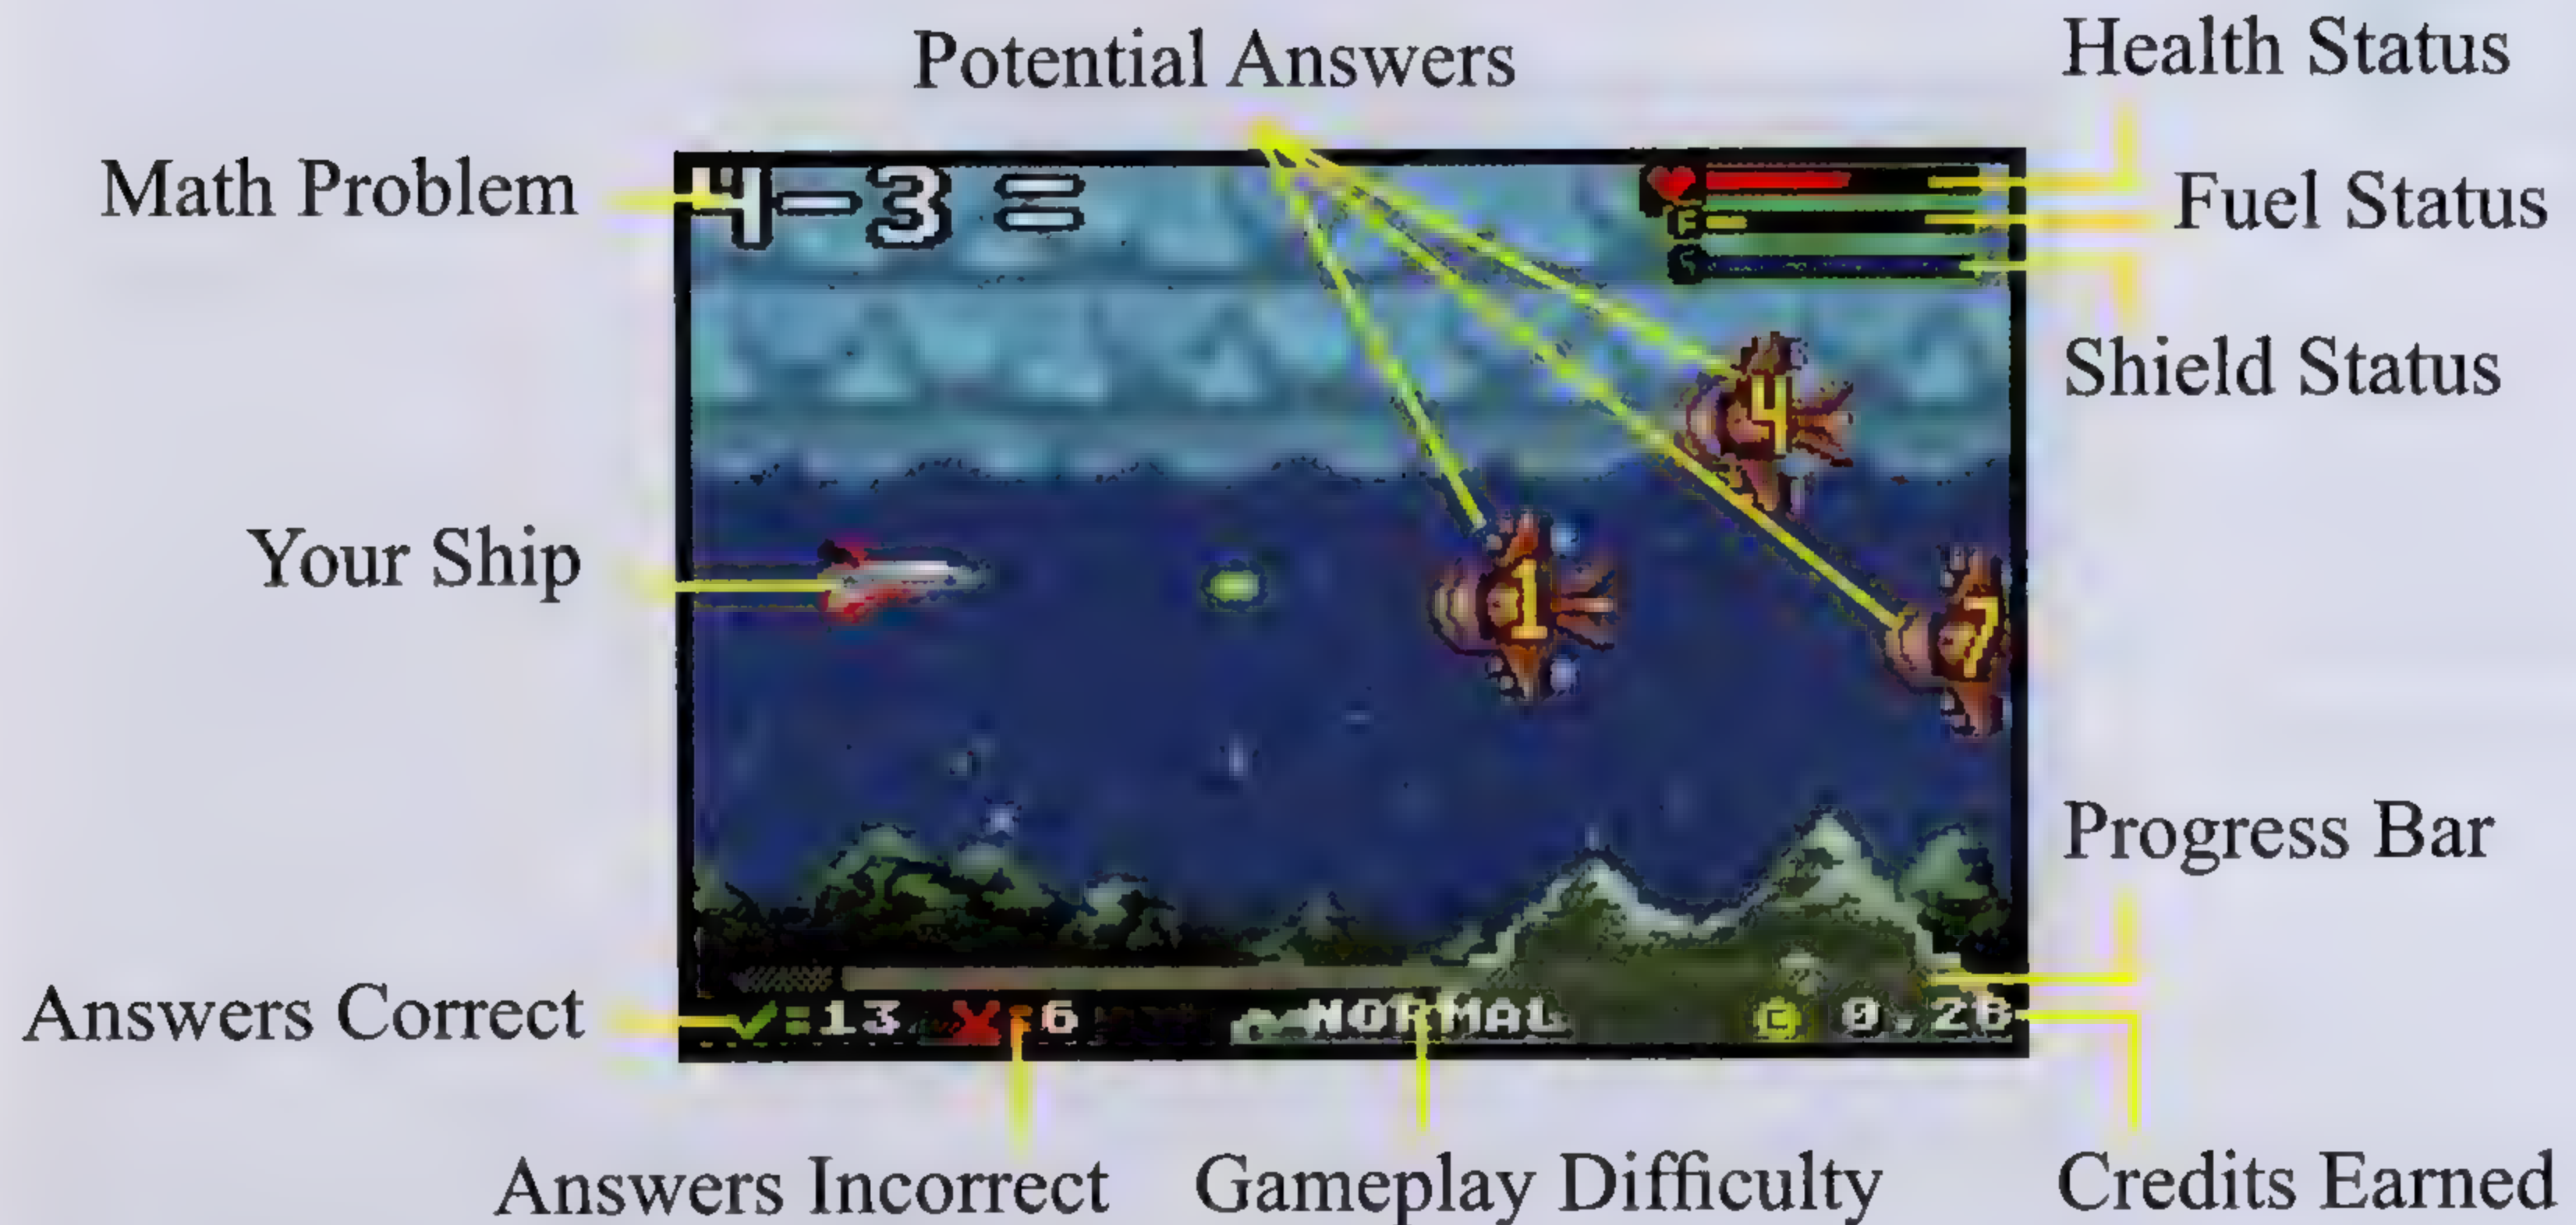

Follow the in-game tutorial to learn more about how to play the game. To enter a mission, fly to the flashing square using the +Control Pad and press the A Button.

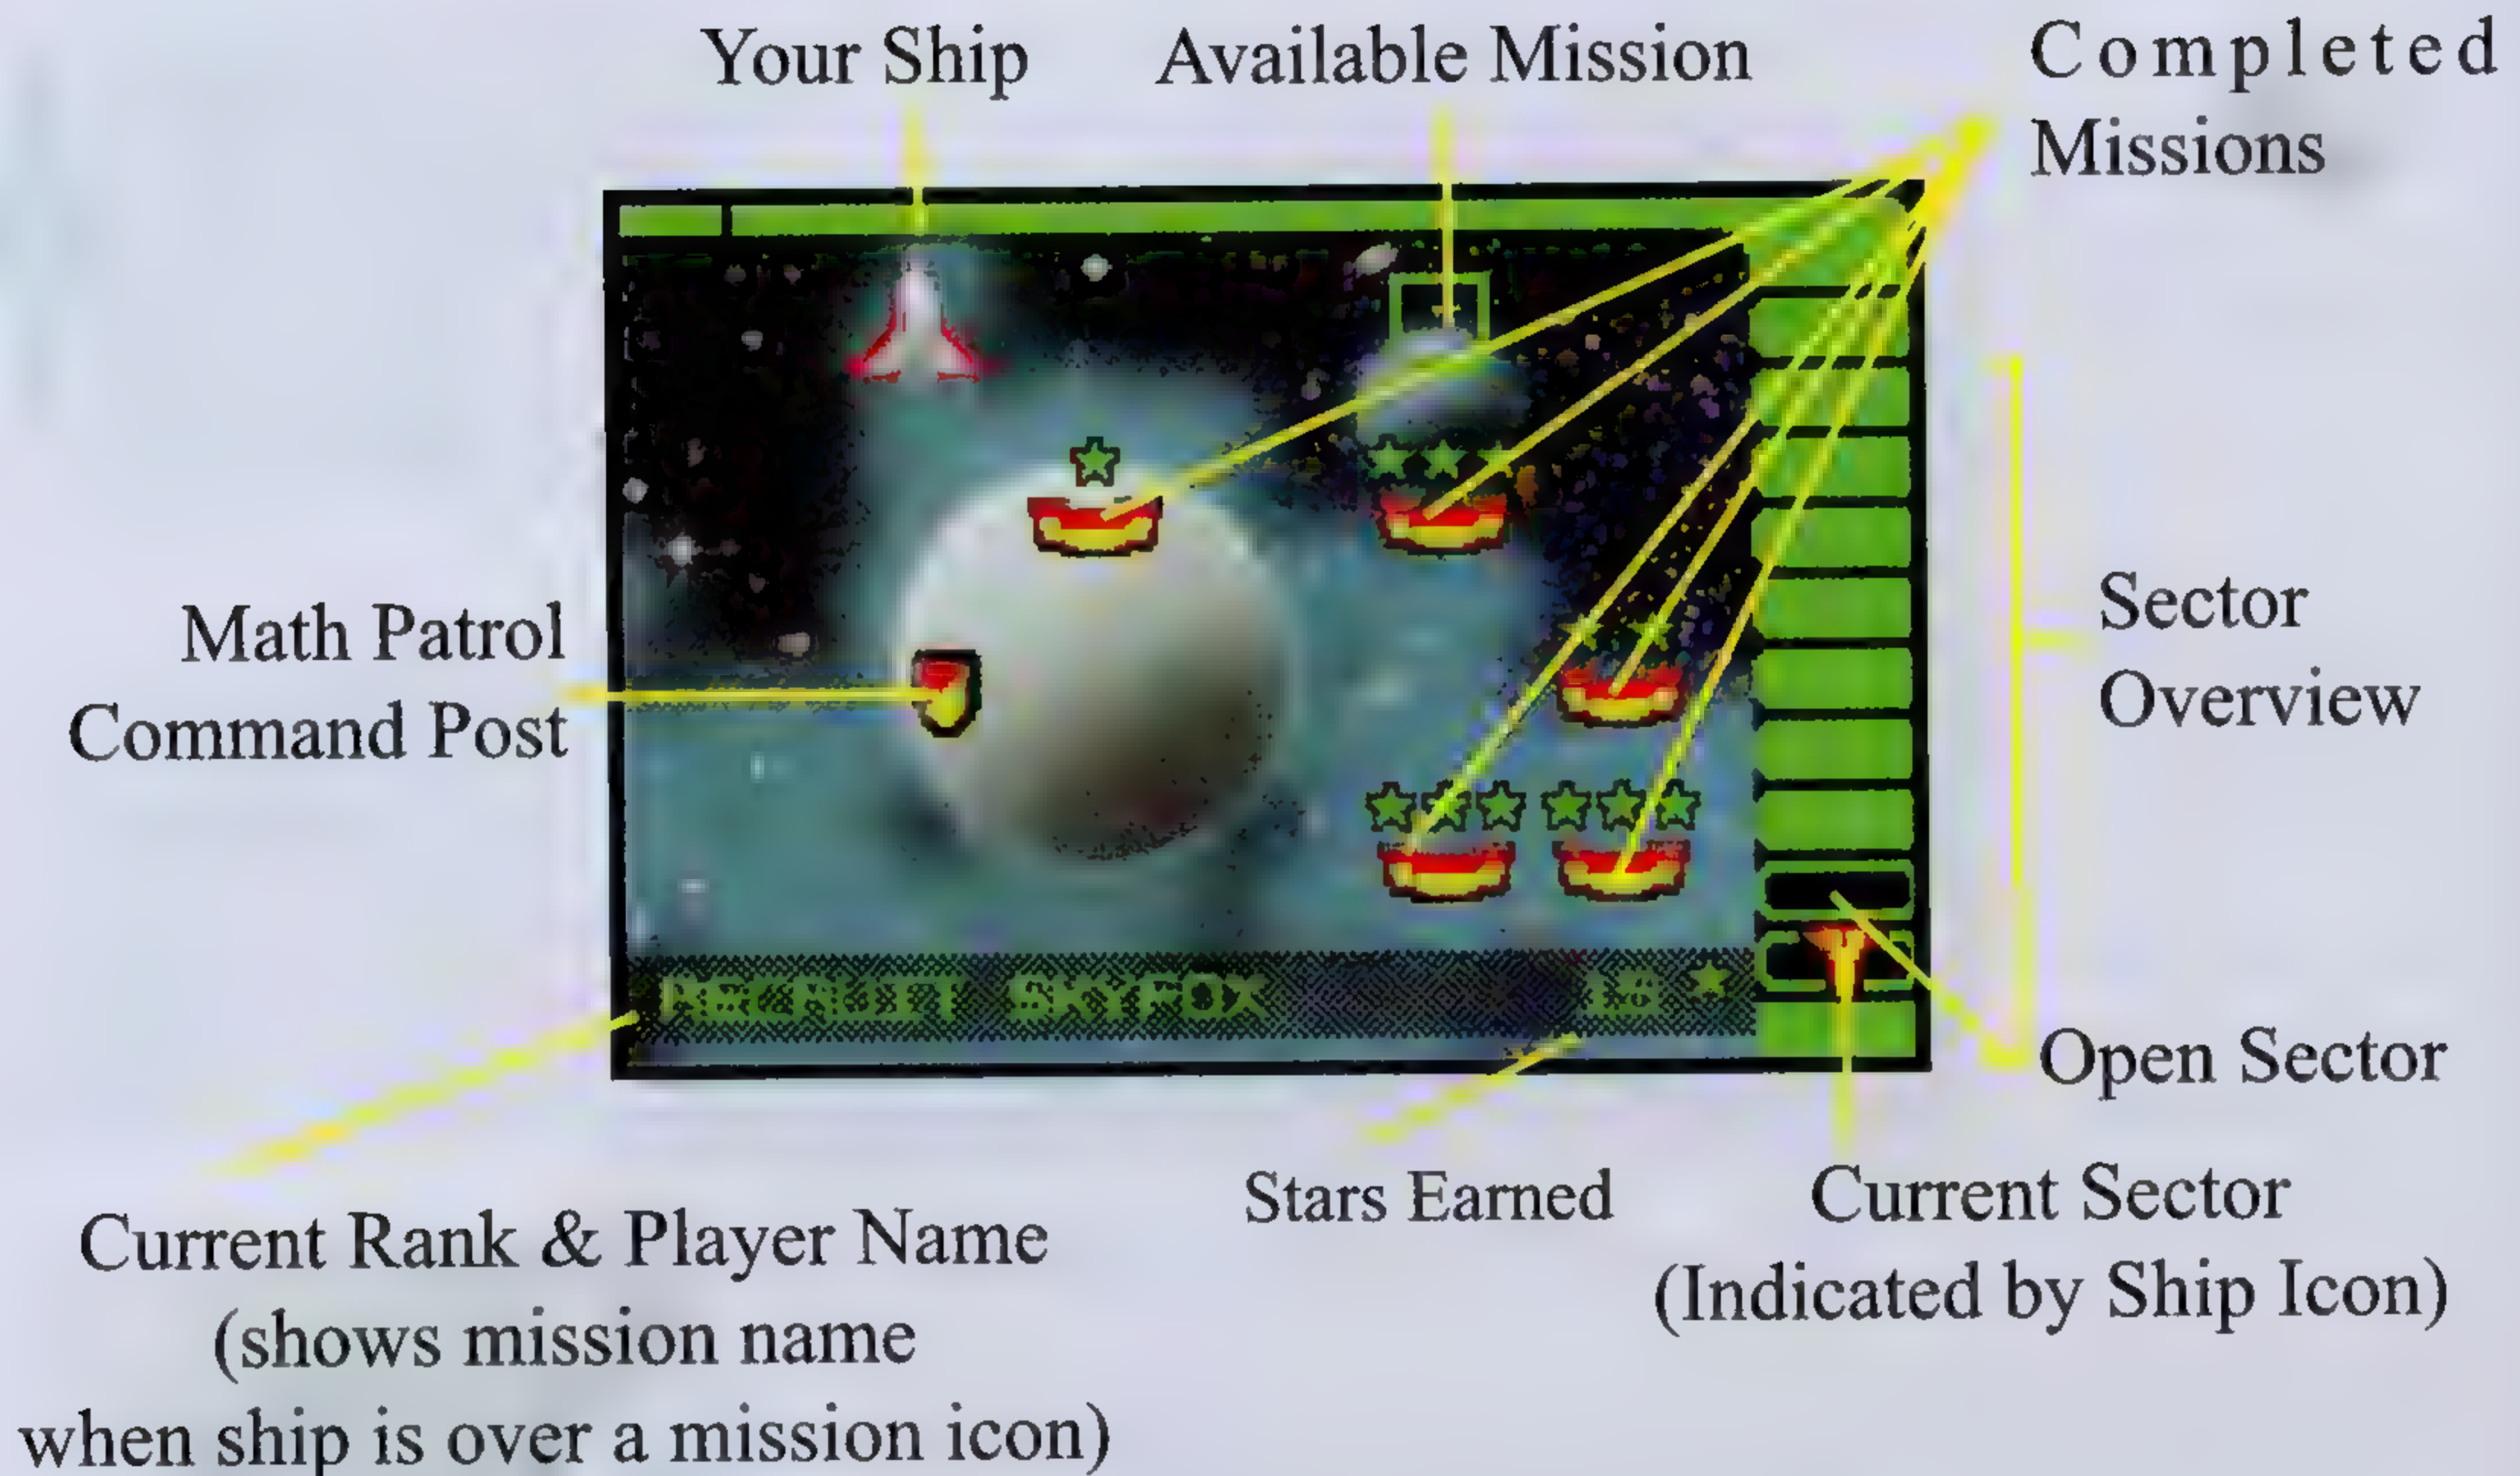

You earn credits for hitting correct answers and bonus credits for hitting blank targets. You lose credits and health if you hit wrong answers.

Sample Game Screen

This is a sample game screen for Side Fighter. The other game types have different designs though the general layout is the same. (See page 12 to see the other game types.)

Map Screen

Sometimes new missions will open up in prior sectors, so fly down to explore the map too, not just up.

Mission Status Icons

Game progress is indicated by the number of stars you have earned. You can earn zero to three stars for each mission based on the percentage of math problems you correctly answered within that mission. The current number of credits (money) is not a good indicator as players may spend their credits at the Ship Shop (p. 23).

After all the required missions in a Sector are completed, a new Sector opens up as indicated on the Sector Overview bar of the Map Screen. Fly your ship up or down off the Map Screen to enter other open sectors. Bonus missions are unlocked after all of the other missions in a Sector are completed.

If you ever get stuck in the game, go back and replay missions to earn three stars in each of them. You should also search other sectors, including earlier ones, that may have new missions to complete!

Game Types

Here are the four main mini-game types in Math Patrol.

Power-Ups

Power-ups occasionally appear during games after shooting a correct answer. Collect power-ups by flying over them during missions to re-supply your health, fuel, or shields. If your ship runs out of Fuel or Health, your ship will blow up! Alien Artifacts can provide special powers (p. 27).

Practice Games

Practice games are best for short play (about 4-8 minutes per game) and to manually select exactly the type of game, content and difficulty you want to play. To start a practice game, select Practice from the main menu (p. 7), and then select New Practice.

Use the +Control Pad Left or Right to scroll through each of the options within a category and then press down on the +Control Pad to move on to the next category. Select Play to start the Practice Game.

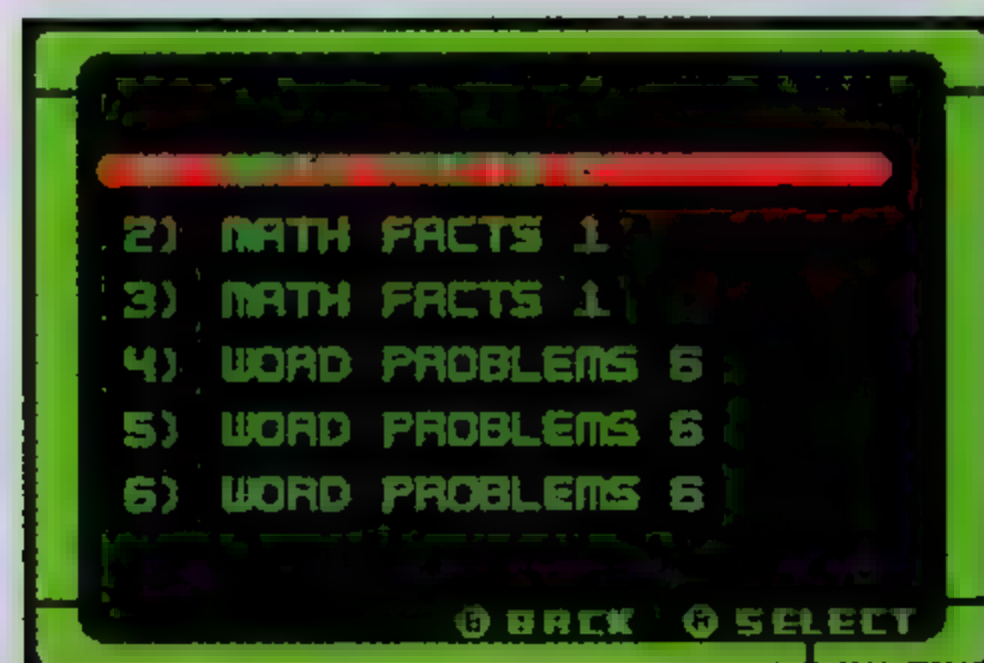

Viewing Practice Game Results

After a practice game, the score screen is displayed. The most important thing to note in a practice games result screen is the final score: 11/20 means 11 problems were correctly solved on the first attempt, out of 20 total.

You can also see a listing of previous practice game scores by clicking on View Results.

The most recent game results are listed at the top of the list. Select a game result to see the detailed score screen from that game.

All of the mathematics content in Math Patrol is based on national and state curriculum standards for 1st and 2nd grades. Ship Shop

Ship shop is where you can buy or sell ships, weapons, and shields. You can also change the weapon, shield, or alien artifact with which your current ship is equipped.

To enter Ship Shop, select the Ship Shop icon from within a Math Patrol Command Post menu as shown here.

The main Ship Shop screen shows the status of your current ship, including its weapon, shield, and alien artifact power. If you have already purchased other ships, weapons, or shields, you can select Ship to choose which ship and equipment will be used in missions.

The latest purchase you have made is automatically assigned to your ship.

After you earn enough credits within missions, select Buy from the main Ship Shop menu to purchase new ships, weapons, or shields. Select Sell to raise more money by selling equipment and alien artifacts you do not think you will need anymore.

The first screen in Buy shows weapons choices (shown at top left). Options that you can not buy yet are grayed out. To purchase those, you will first either need to earn more credits and/or a higher Rank (p. 28).

You are only able to sell equipment if you have two or more of that type. You are not able to sell your only ship or your only shield, for instance.

Use the +Control Pad Up or Down to see the other screens showing shield and ship options.

Use Rank Test from the Math Patrol Command Post menu (p. 22) to advance in rank from Recruit to Ensign to Captain, and then finally to Admiral.

With increased rank comes better ships, equipment and missions. However, in order to be eligible to take the Rank Test, you must first have earned enough stars by completing other missions (p. 11).

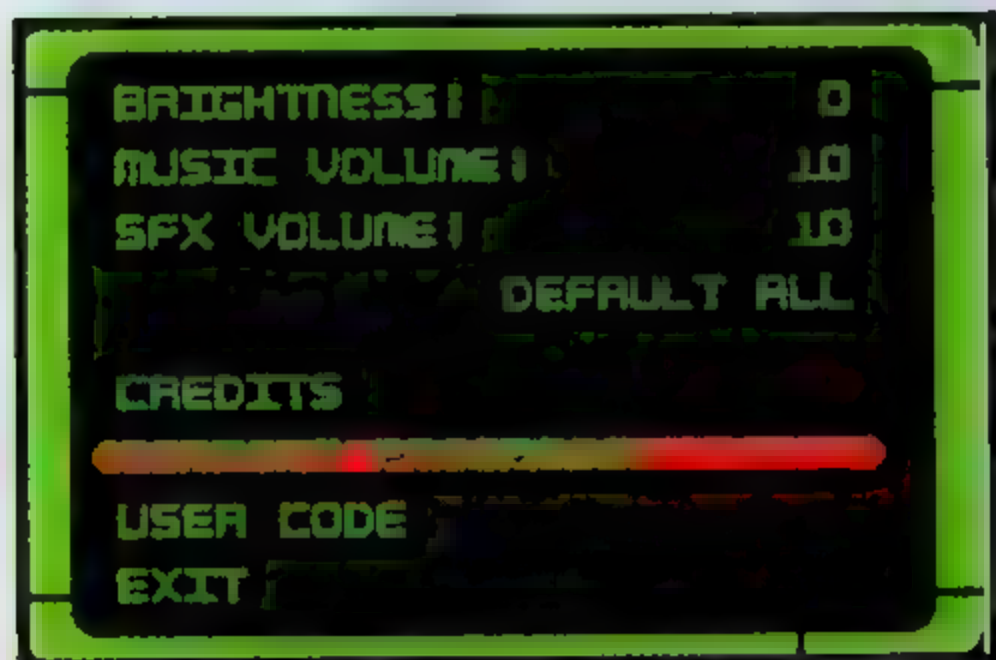

The Rank Test is formatted like a real test with word problems, and will cover all of the Content Levels (p. 16) that you have successfully completed up to that point within the game.

Remember, if you ever get stuck in the game, go back and replay missions to earn three stars in each of them until you have enough stars to take the next Rank Test. You should also search other map sectors (p. 10), including earlier ones, that may have new missions available.

Options Menu

The Options menu is available from the main menu screen as shown at left. Within the Options menu, you can change the appearance and sound levels within the game.

Most importantly, you can view your current Content Progress (p.21) and also enter in your GXB User ID Code and then view your GXB Score Code (p. 3).

Note that you can also view your GXB Codes in game from within a Math Patrol Command Post menu (p. 22) as shown at the lower left screen

Difficulty Types

There are two types of difficulty settings in Math Patrol: Game Play difficulty and Content Level difficulty, both of which are automatically adjusted when playing a full game, and which can be manually set in Practice Mode.

Game Play Difficulty ranges from Normal to Hard to Pro. It is automatically set based on the player's performance in previous mini-games of the same Game Type. In Normal Game Play Difficulty, the player's ship does not suffer damage from collisions and the enemies are slower and less aggressive, whereas in the Hard and Pro the Game Play is significantly harder. Bonuses are given for completing missions at higher difficulty levels.

Content Level Difficulty is the rate at which the player advances in content level within a particular content category. For instance, if a player completes a mission with great success, they will also advance in content level. If a player completes a mission with great difficulty, the content level of the next mission will be decreased. If a player's success is moderate, then they will experience the same content level in a future mission.

For the Parent

Math Patrol is a comprehensive educational title designed to help reinforce mathematics fundamentals taught according to U.S. National and State standards for 1st and 2nd grades. Math Patrol is ideally suited for a 2nd grader, but because it provides comprehensive review of 1st grade content it should also be useful and enjoyable for a 1st grader as well. Any student (regardless of grade) who can use a reinforcement of mathematics fundamentals will also benefit.

Real-world rewards such as Certificates, awards, and even clothing are available for your child through the GXB Rewards Program (p. 3). Fun pages, worksheets and workbooks are also available for free from the GXB website at <http://www.GXBInteractive.com>. It is also easy to track your child's Content Progress (p. 21) from within the game and from the GXB website (p. 3).

We strongly encourage parents to actively support their child's interest and sense of accomplishment within the game by showing interest in their advancement. Some of the best questions to ask would be:

- How many stars have you earned (p. 11)? What Rank are you (p. 28)?
- What ship do you have now (p. 27)? What is your favorite mission?

For the Educator

This title has been specifically designed for use in the classroom as either a learning center or by the entire class to augment and provide practice for 1st and 2nd grade level mathematics. This title is also excellent for use by students in higher grades who may be struggling with mathematics because they lack a strong foundation in one or more fundamental content areas.

The GXB website contains many resources that will make Math Patrol easier to manage and more productive within the classroom, such as:

- Comprehensive teachers guides
- Fun-pages
- Worksheets,
- Pre-tests and post-tests
- Easy progress tracking and viewing
- Personalized Certificates of Achievement
- Classroom organization and storage boxes
